THE PRAYER OF TWENTY MILLION

To Abraham Lincoln, President of the U. States.

Dear Sir,

I know not how far the knowledge you may have of the great suffering that is extending itself in these United States; may it be of such an extent that you will not only attempt to alleviate it, but that you will also seek to prevent it. I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am aware that the condition of the slaves in these United States is not a matter of indifference to you, and that you have instructed your Secretary of War to take all necessary steps to prevent the suffering of the slaves in the Southern States. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.

I am convinced that the cause of the slaves is a cause of the highest importance, and that the welfare of the country depends upon their proper treatment. In this, I have no doubt that you will succeed.
Correspondence with Mr. Greely.