Title Page & Abstract

An Interview with Philip Bradshaw

Part of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library Agriculture in Illinois Oral History project

Interview # AI-A-L-2007-030

Philip Bradshaw, an active participant in Illinois farm groups throughout his life, was interviewed on the date listed below as part of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library's Agriculture in Illinois Oral History project.

Interview dates & location:

Date: November 14, 2007 Location: Griggsville, IL

Interview Format: Digital audio

Interviewer: Richard Hull, D.V.M.; ALPL Volunteer

Technical Support (cameraman, etc): N/A

Transcription by: Tape Transcription Center

Edited by: Ann Countryman and Rozanne Flatt, ALPL Volunteer

Total Time: $52 \min + 1 \ln 23 \min = 2 \ln 15 \min / 2.25 \ln 32$

Accessioned into the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library Archives on 1/23/2008

The interview is archived at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library in Springfield, Illinois.

© 2007 Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library

Abstract

Philip Bradshaw, Agriculture in Illinois, AI-A-L-2007-030

Biographical Information & Synopsis: Philip Bradshaw was born in Griggsville, Illinois on April 13, 1939. He grew up on the farm in Pike County near Griggsville, and attended Western Illinois University, majoring in Education, business and agriculture. He spent his adult life participating in Illinois allied farm groups and community activities, and especially with developing and promoting the pork industry, both in Illinois and nationally. His activities included the Illinois Pork Producer's Association as well as leadership positions in the Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI), later known as the National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA), and the United States Animal Health Association. He was also involved in the completion of Interstate 72 through Adams, Morgan, Pike and Scott Counties, through western Illinois, and contributed to the clean-up of pseudorabies (PRV) in Illinois and the United States.

Furthermore, Philip helped develop plans to eradicate Foot and Mouth Disease in South America, and is currently involved with the Soybean Board at the national and state level. Finally, as one of the leaders of the New Philadelphia Project, he reviewed the attempt to preserve and restore this historic farming village in western Illinois. Ultimately, this interview deals with how Philip helped influence and shape agriculture in the state as we see it today.

Topics Covered: Family and farm life in rural Illinois; Illinois Pork Pruoducers Association; Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI); National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA); United States Animal Health Association; Interstate 72 planning and construction; pseudorabies research and cleanup; Foot and Mouth Disease in South America; Soybean Board; New Philadelphia Project, Western Illinois

Note to the Reader: Readers of the oral history memoir should bear in mind that this is a transcript of the spoken word, and that the interviewer, interviewee and editor sought to preserve the informal, conversational style that is inherent in such historical sources. The Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library is not responsible for the factual accuracy of the memoir, nor for the views expressed therein. We leave these for the reader to judge.

COPYRIGHT

The following material can be used for educational and other non-commercial purposes without the written permission of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library. "Fair use" criteria of Section 107 of the Copyright Act of 1976 must be followed. These materials are not to be deposited in other repositories, nor used for resale or commercial purposes without the authorization from the Audio-Visual Curator at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library, 112 N. 6th Street, Springfield, Illinois 62701. Telephone (217) 785-7955