Abstract

Marilyn L. Satterwhite, Education is Key-Community College, EC-A-L-2013-099

Biographical Information Overview of Interview: Marilyn Weinard Satterwhite was born in Danville, Illinois in 1942. She grew up on a farm and graduated from Rossville High School in 1960. She earned a bachelor degree in Education from Eastern Illinois in 1964 and a Masters in Education from the University of Illinois in 1968, majoring in business education. She began her teaching career at Danville High School in 1964. In 1965, she transitioned to the new junior college in Danville-now called Danville Area Community College.

Marilyn retired from DACC in 2002, but has continued teaching part-time at the college after retirement. She also serves as executive director of the Danville Area Community College Annuitant Association. She also has written several textbooks for McGraw Hill. During the interview she explores the transition from Danville School District 118 in 1965 to Danville Area Community College.

Subject Headings/Key Words: Danville Area Community College (1966-2013); early years of Danville Community College (1946-1965); business education at DACC; the campus transition of the VA Hospital to a community college; community college teaching and DACC students; community college referendums 1985and 1994; community college challenges.

Note to the Reader: Readers of the oral history memoir should bear in mind that this is a transcript of the spoken word, and that the interviewer, interviewee and editor sought to preserve the informal, conversational style that is inherent in such historical sources. The Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library is not responsible for the factual accuracy of the memoir, nor for the views expressed therein. We leave these for the reader to judge.
