Abstract

Charles Evans, Veterans Remember, VR2-A-L-2015-034

Biographical Information Overview of Interview: Charles Evans was born in April, 1922 in Bristow, Oklahoma. He was a fighter pilot in WWII. His interest in aviation developed in his childhood when his father, who had been an aircraft mechanic in WW I, purchased a surplus Curtiss Jenny biplane. Charles' father worked in the oil industry and his family moved from Oklahoma to Illinois (as a result of the Illinois oil boom) during Charles' high school years. Evans attended the University of Illinois in Champaign for two years and worked in the Illinois oil industry during the summers before enlisting in the Air Force, reporting for duty in January, 1943. He became a fighter pilot and flew P-51 mustangs in the European theater, escorting B-17 and B-24 bombers on missions into Germany and flying ground support missions, including missions near the beachheads on D-Day. Upon leaving the service, Judge Evans obtained his Bachelors and J. D. degrees from the University of Illinois at Champaign. He worked for the Illinois Attorney General; went to Houston, Texas to practice law as a trial lawyer; and returned to the Illinois Attorney General's Office. He was appointed as a federal magistrate in Springfield, Illinois and worked as a magistrate for over thirty years before retiring.
